

WPA PROMISES OHIOANS JOBS DESPITE DELAY

Treasury Funds Received This Week Will Provide Projects

ELIGIBLE MEN IN LARGER COUNTIES

Regular Allotments from Washington Meeting With Delay

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, Oct. 22.—The Works Progress Administration promised unequivocally today to provide between 250,000 and 300,000 able-bodied Ohioans on relief with jobs despite delay in releasing funds in Washington.

C. C. Stillman, retiring WPA chief in Ohio, disclosed tentative abandonment of hope of achieving the stated goal of 213,000 jobs by Nov. 1 "unless releases come faster than they have been coming." He revised the goal to 95,000 within 10 days, an increase of about 60,000 over present figures.

Funds Received Stillman said the 60,000 would be put to work on projects to be started under an allotment of $26,333,225 sent to Ohio this week by the treasury department at Washington.

Other WPA officials said this downward revision affects the program only in its schedule. The WPA, they said, will take care of all men eligible to employment on its projects in the course of time. They estimated the total eligible at between 250,000 and 300,000.

The federal emergency relief administration, scheduled for complete liquidation by Nov. 1, will probably be extended in the more populous counties, officials said, but will be able to cease activity in smaller counties.

The majority of men eligible for WPA jobs are in the larger counties, they said, "and were only waiting word from Washington to extend the FERA there to take care of these men until the WPA program is in full swing."

Stillman said completion of many projects does not mean ended work for the men employed. They continue eligible for other WPA jobs, he said.

Youth Will Share Youth's share of the nation's relief program developed further today. Aubrey Williams, director of the National Youth administration, announced in Washington plans to give a large slice of the $27,000,000 N.Y.A. funds to local governments to put 94,000 young people to work by Nov. 1.

The young people would serve mostly as community playground.

Visitors Examined Closely At Jail

BUCHYRUS, Oct. 22.—Deputies examined visitors closely at Crawford county jail today as Sheriff Arthur L. Stuckert investigated the records of two men involved in a jail break.

Frank Catello, 21, said by the sheriff to have admitted smuggling one pistol into the jail, faced another sentence in the prison where he had just completed a 38-day term.

The sheriff said Catello confessed taking a revolver from Stuckert's automobile and getting it to Edward Long, 20, Mansfield, and Pat Cleary, 22, Guilford, Miss., both of whom were held on charges of robbing a filling station.

Two revolvers were found in the cell occupied by the pair when deputies armed with machine guns searched it yesterday. The sheriff said the escape plot included plans to murder him, after luring him to the cell. The men then planned to use the sheriff's keys to escape.

EAST CUBA HIT BY HURRICANE

Only One Life Lost Although Damage Estimate Is High

(By Associated Press) HAVANA, Oct. 22.—A roaring hurricane swept the eastern tip of Cuba and western Haiti today after causing $2,500,000 damage in Jamaica and reducing Santiago to debris.

Brief reports from Santiago said the only means of communication with the rest of the republic was by wireless.

One Life Lost One life was known lost since the storm roared in from the south shortly before midnight.

Epifanio Perez, 39, died of injuries received when a wall fell on her. Her husband, Cipriano Perez, was gravely injured.

Reports were lacking from Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

The damage or the number of injured in Santiago and Oriente province, where the hurricane apparently centered, could not be determined. The gale was described as being strong enough to knock a walking man down.

Two east Cuba towns, Calmanera and Bouquillon, had been evacuated.

Santiago had battened down for the blow. Cafes and theaters were closed. Trams and busses were halted. Patrols of firemen, police and soldiers helped secure residences against the force of the storm. Railroads "tied down" all rolling stock, except that used for evacuation of the populations of Calmanera and Bouquillon.

URGED TO HALT AUTO DAMAGES

Motor Club Appeals For Harmless Halloween Celebration

The Columbiana County Motor club, through Manager A. P. Morris, today asked the cooperation of parents and school teachers in urging children that damage to motor vehicles should not be part of the city's Halloween celebration.

Pointing to the expense as well as the annoyance to the owners, the auto club executive said the morning after Halloween usually finds many cars with broken windows, defaced paint and flat tires.

"The financial loss to motorists due to the over-enthusiasm of Halloween celebrants runs into a huge sum here and elsewhere in the county," Manager Morris said. "A greater part of this loss could be prevented if parents would advise their children that it is bad sportsmanship to damage property."

"In many instances the depredations are due to the fact that children do not fully realize the damage they are causing. What seems to them a mere prank is a matter of serious concern to the car owner."

Teachers also are urged to join in the movement to bring about a harmless Halloween, as the classroom is an ideal place for children to be taught how to enjoy themselves without causing financial loss to others.

At the same time Morris advised motorists to lock their cars securely on Halloween night.

Two Hunters Fined Under New Rulings

LISBON, Oct. 22.—Deputy Game Warden Wayne E. Cox charged William L. Brightwell of Greenford with shooting wild game at Guilford Lake with a rifle, in the zone of the peace court of M. K. Zimmerman here. Brightwell entered a plea of guilty, and was fined $25 and costs.

Paul Rinehart of Alliance was charged in the same court by Deputy Game Warden L. W. Boring with hunting wild game at Guilford Lake with a repeating shotgun. Rinehart also entered a plea of guilty, and was fined $25 and costs.

Both charges were in violation of rulings promulgated by the State Department of Conservation last July.

RELIEF CLIENT DIES WHEN CAR GOES OFF ROAD

Mrs. Bessie Donahue, 51, Of East Liverpool Is The Victim

HAD 'THUMBED' RIDE WITH AKRON DRIVER

Woman Was Enroute To County Relief Bureau at Lisbon

Mrs. Bessie Donahue, 51, of 825 Sopla st., East Liverpool, died instantly from a fractured skull while en route to Lisbon at 9 a. m. today to get relief.

She died of injuries received when the car in which she was riding with Robert Davis, 45, of Akron, crashed through a guard rail on the Lincoln highway near the intersection of Routes 30 and 7, above Cannons Mill, and overturned.

Coroner Investigates Davis, who was hurt about the legs, told East Liverpool police the woman "thumbed" a ride with him at the city limits of Liverpool. He said his car plunged off the road when a blanket on the seat of the car blew up over his face.

Davis, a service station attendant in Akron, was detained by police at East Liverpool pending an investigation by Coroner W. C. Maple of Kensington.

The body of Mrs. Donahue was removed to an East Liverpool funeral home. Davis told police he was en route from Jeannette, Pa., to his home in Akron.

Besides her husband, Thomas, Mrs. Donahue is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Harold Haney of Chester, W. Va., and Mrs. Vera Bebout of the home; a son, Edward L. Humphries, of Philadelphia, and three sisters and one brother.

Salem Woman Hurt Mrs. Elizabeth Kelly, 48, of 1008 East Third st., suffered slight injuries when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband, Angelo, on Route 62 near Canfield, at 6:30 p. m. Monday, was struck by another machine, driven by Julius Bertolini of Youngstown.

She received treatment at the City hospital here for a skull laceration and an injury to her right leg.

NUDE TEACHER'S SLAYER SOUGHT

Officers Still Without Clues In Death of South Dakota Woman

(By Associated Press) LEOLA, S. D., Oct. 22.—State officers depended upon medical reports today for a clue to the solution of the death of Lela Halvorson, 24 year old Madison, S. D., school teacher.

Miss Halvorson, whose nude body was found in a hotel room Sunday morning, had come to work here as a substitute teacher.

W. S. Gordon, chief of the state department of justice, said preliminary investigation indicated the teacher had been strangled and ravished. Two men were questioned in connection with the case, he said, but both were released and a third was sought.

The Madison girl arrived Saturday night. She had an appointment to meet Miss Martha Koppy, the teacher Miss Halvorson was to relieve. Miss Koppy told the authorities she went to the substitute teacher's room at 9 a. m., but noticed nothing unusual.

Returning a second time, she said she saw Miss Halvorson's body on the floor behind a bed which had concealed it from view on her previous visit.

An inquest was called but it was recessed pending outcome of an examination of the contents of Miss Halvorson's stomach.

At top is shown two of the many homes in Helena, Mont., which were wrecked, and, at bottom, the remains of a large biscuit concern in Helena.

DELAY IN WPA PROJECTS SEEN

Work On 100 Jobs Listed In County Can't Be Started Nov. 1

LISBON, Oct. 22.—With nearly 100 projects submitted in the WPA program for this county, and with fewer than 500 men being employed, it was intimated here today that it would be impossible to start projects by Nov. 1, whether or not official release is immediately received.

Over a month has elapsed since a project was "released" in this county. An official record posted in the WPA offices here shows 74 projects listed, but these have not been approved for actual work.

As one project is completed, those employed are then transferred to another "going" project, this program keeping those now employed on the active list.

Scores of projects having to do with township and county road improvement are still "hanging fire."

During the early months of the year, WPA and WPA officials here were urged to submit all projects possible, the word being given then that all employables in the county and on relief lists would be placed on the active work rolls on or before Nov. 1. That this will be impossible from the present status of the schedule is admitted by all those in charge of project programs.

BRITAIN OPENS WAY TO ITALY TO HALT WAR

Sir Samuel Hoare Says England Never Turned Back on Peace

SANCTIONS WOULD ISOLATE ITALIANS

Ethiopian Forces Suffer Heavy Casualties In Battle Today

(By Associated Press) The British government, a leader in League of Nations sanctions against Italy for its aggression in Ethiopia, left the way open today for an end to hostilities in East Africa.

Opening debate in parliament on the Afro-European crisis, foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare declared Britain had never turned its back on a peaceful solution.

"There is still breathing space before the economic pressure can be applied," he said. "Can it not be used for another attempt at such a settlement?"

Almost Direct Plea As if in a direct plea to Mussolini not to press further in Ethiopia, the foreign secretary continued:

"Italy is still a member of the League of Nations. I welcome this fact. Cannot this eleventh-hour be used to make it unnecessary to proceed farther along the unattractive road of economic action against a fellow member, an old friend, a former ally?"

Sanctions imposed by the League of Nations would virtually isolate Italy economically from most of the world.

There were indications from Paris and Rome the efforts for peace were definitely shaping up. It was expected Duce's terms for ending his conquest against Haile Selassie's empire would be transmitted to London and then to the league, through Premier Pierre Laval of France.

While Mussolini and Sir Eric Drummond, the British ambassador, have been trying to allay the tense feeling between Rome and London, one of the day's developments was likely to add to the strained relationship.

The Italians barred from circulation in Italy the London Daily Telegraph, a conservative newspaper and regarded in political circles as the mouthpiece of Captain Anthony Eden, Britain's leader at Geneva.

Machine Guns Kill Ethiopians

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 22.—(Exchange Telegraph)—Runners reaching the capital from the war zone said today Ethiopian forces in the north appeared to have suffered defeat at the hands of an Italian detachment, receiving heavy casualties.

The runners reported that warriors under the command of Dedjazmach Ayelu, in charge of the military center of Wolkait, west of the Italian northern armies, became impatient at the restraint imposed on them and launched an attack.

Ayelu tried to hold them back, the runners said, but the excited tribesmen became uncontrollable and rushed madly forward to meet withering fire from machine guns.

Hundreds were reported killed and wounded, and Ayelu himself was said to be shot, although the extent of his wounds was unknown.

Lumber for County Conservation Camp Buildings Received

LISBON, Oct. 22.—Seven carloads of lumber from Mississippi yards delivered in the Erie railroad yards here is being transported to the CCC camp on the county home farm by two tractor-trailer trucks ordered here from a private contractor hauler at Columbus by federal government authority. Columbiana county truckers were not asked to bid on this hauling project.

All buildings to be erected at this CCC camp are of the portable type. Assembling of the buildings is in charge of S. L. Breigler, superintendent of camp construction.

All portable structures will be assembled within three weeks, it is planned. Tents, now used for housing purposes, will be placed in storage.

Additional recruits are expected to be registered at this county camp next week, it was said today, due to the fact that several other camps in Ohio are being abandoned, following completion of programs.

IN THE MIDDLE

It would be surprising to discover an international situation in which no country was struggling unconfortably between two fires. This time France seems to be in the middle.The French want to be friends with the English, but they want to be friends with the Italians, too.
They are having a trying time figuring how to please two masters and still take care of themselves.It is fairly well established that Premier Mussolini counted on France's tacit support when making his plans for the Ethiopian adventure. French diplomats, apparently, didn't care to disillusion the premier.English diplomats, however, took it upon themselves to disillusion the French diplomats by choosing to take Premier Mussolini seriously. Thereupon, France began to squirm between Scylla and Charybdis.France's primary interest in all things and at all times is to guarantee its own security. The British navy and British soldiers are indispensable, therefore. Due to Italy's interest in keeping Austria out of the hands of German Nazis, Italian soldiers also are indispensable to France.France cannot accede to English plans for embarrassing Italy without losing the friendship of the Italians. It cannot consent to Premier Mussolini's plans for exercising fascism without jeopardizing the friendship of the British and weakening the League of Nations.Thus, French statesmen are finding it necessary to ride a diplomatic fence stretched between the English channel and the Mediterranean sea. They are obviously uncomfortable, but in a situation like the present one discomfort is relative. Compared with what would be their state if they were to slip off the fence, they are ideally situated. Being in the middle has advantages as well as disadvantages.

TWO WEEKS

The war in Ethiopia seems to have lasted much longer than the two weeks of actual fighting. It is natural to include months of intensive preparation as part of the war.Nothing has happened the last fortnight to alter the common idea of the campaign before it was opened formally. War news is notoriously inaccurate, but general trends cannot be concealed.The Ethiopian defenders, as was expected, are not trying to defeat the Italian invaders in open combat.
They are retreating before the superior force of Premier Mussolini's modern army.The cost and hazard of the invasion increase by an algebraical progression according to the distance between the supply bases and the army outposts.
Ethiopian strategists have predicted the terrain would defend their country, and they are still confident.Modern weapons and machinery which give the Italians a distinct advantage under favorable conditions are matched by the independence and ruggedness of Ethiopian soldiers, who are fighting in their own country. That was the expectation of the war, and it is being borne out.There has been no decisive action yet. The invaders have made much of victories which were victories only by default. Progress is slow, because each step must be secured by new roads extending the supply line. At the beginning it was the guess of most of America's armchair military strategists that Italy was planning to bite off more than it could chew. After two weeks of biting, the chewing is beginning to slow down. Nothing has happened yet to alter the prevailing opinion that Premier Mussolini must be either desperate or the victim of an illusion to attempt a task of such magnitude as the conquest of Ethiopia.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—Iowa, from either modesty or paucity, for many years seemed to have the scantiest supply of figures in the world of art and literature. At the New York town, one met celebrities from every state in the union, but somehow seldom any from Iowa.From surface indications about all that Iowa could bring about artistically was Ruth Suckow, with her fine tales of homely Iowa life and that artist, whose name escapes me, who has made at least a success of time with paintings of rural people and scenes from this Iowa milieu.But lately Iowa has come to the artistic forefront with a bang. Foremost is the Iowa, Darryl F.
Zanuck, whose tremendous conceptions in movies have bestowed a salary of $250,000 a year. Also Mac-Kinlay Kantor in the field of novel and short story and poems of Civil War.Many regard his "The Voice of Bagle Ann" as the most sublime dog story. Then there is Kent Taylor, whose recent prominence as a leading man in the cinema makes him somewhat a figure in that line.
Incidentally, Indiana is usually foremost at celebrity gatherings.Monta Bell, the director, who has been over in London trying to see just what a right-handed boy could do in a left-handed town, also turning out a movie script called "War," mastered the monochrome while there. And determined to face the boos by sporting it upon his return. But coming up the bayhis nerve deserted and he went to the rail, opened his eye wide and let it pop into the sea.Double taxes probably lost to America the most expert of the cinema monochromists—George Arliss. The best reports are he will remain in England, make one more picture portraying the life of Samuel Pepys, ascend to the knighthood and retire. He has an annuity paying $19,000 a year.The first monocle I ever saw was worn by Arliss, when he was touring as leading man with Mrs.
Fiske. I cornered him for an interview at a hotel breakfast table in Cincinnati. At intervals as he talked he removed the glass, revealing an eye permanently stretched into a grotesque oval shape. I rather hoped it would drop into his oatmeal so I could quote Charlie Russell's famous line about his spectacles. Strid Russell: "They look like the glass in a hen-house window."Berton Bralery recently broke his own record by selling some verse, for a very fair price, on their 139th trip through the mails. The magazine which bought them had, in the course of the five years the poems had been traveling, rejected the same verse six times. It is true postage ate up about half the price, but postage is general overhead in the poet's trade and is charged, not to individual manuscripts, but to general expenses. Thomas Burke sent a poem to London Punch now and then for eight years. Finally it was printed.One of Manhattan's notable summer visitors used to be Henry Watterson, the Louisville editor. He came to town for his holiday when the metropolis was hottest and emptiest. In the cool of the evening he would foregather at the Lambs with cronies and Marse Henry would insist upon fashioning his own version of the delectable and cooling anodyne called the julep, bringing for the occasion choice sprigs from his Kentucky mint bed. Wilton Lackaye usually managed to be in town, and when they started yarning no listener went home until dawn.James Montgomery Flagg was the leader in the summer vogue of going necktieless. But he always carried a spare—due to the hoity-toity rule in the spiffy spires where most magazine offices are. Those without ties were banned from elevators. Flagg had a hook-on atrocity of a Gay 90 vintage for such exigencies. For his years—and he's no Baby LeRoy—Flagg is the most industrious artist of his day. Aside from his enormous magazine output, he is a judge at practically every beauty contest and never misses a party. His boom companions in relaxation are Jeff Machamer and Ham Fisher.Chaplinania: Near the Warwick a motorist awaiting the green light rested his arm on the window.
His hand held a fat, freshly lit cigar. A bum stepped out, plucked the cigar and sauntered off, puffing nonchalantly.Professor Goddard has perfected a rocket stabilizer.

to Mars will be grateful for the new convenience.

THE STARS SAY

For Wednesday, October 23

A day of intriguing and perplexing conditions is read from the prevailing lunar and mutual configurations. This influence may react upon business as well as private matters, with the prospect of a high touch of the subtle, mysterious or peculiarly emotional entering into social, domestic or romantic affiliations. Love letters, perhaps from an elder, may furnish the intriguing element. But in all be careful of strangers.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of rather unusual, singular and perplexing affairs, in which intrigues, secrecy or connivance may dominate business and private affairs. The social, domestic and affectional may be paramount, with the emotional and idealistic tendencies under a peculiar stimulus. Correspondence with elders may present a perplexing situation.A child born on this day may find its life swayed by the strange, intriguing, subtle and singular. It may be poetic, romantic, emotional and idealistic.

THE DAILY BATH

IT APPEARS that the new health establishment in Saratoga Springs,
New York has already acquired popularity and bids fair to be a great success. I am glad that there is a definite move to establish more of these bathing places. The value of such baths as a means of cure in certain ailments has been known for many years. It is hoped that within a short time they will be available to everyone here, as they have been in Europe for hundreds of years.The daily bath is necessary for health. Every body admits this, yet less than a century ago bathing the whole body at one time was considered shocking. When bathtub were first introduced in this country they were looked upon as a dangerous innovation. It was considered as so risky a thing that one had to get the doctor's permission to take a bath.

Once Was Luxury

Originally the bathtub was an expensive item, and to have one was regarded as a great luxury. It was found only in the home of the rich.
Today, the bathtub is within the reach of everyone and its possession is no longer a mark of social distinction. Yet despite this, it is amazing to learn the number of persons in many sections of the country who fail to utilize the bathtub.The value of the daily bath for persons of all ages cannot be over-stated. We cannot say too much for the many health-giving qualities of this practice. In addition to cleansing the skin and removing accumulated dirt, the bath washes out the pores of the skin.The sweat glands open into these pores. The secretions of these glands help to carry away waste materials of the body. These are really poisonous substances which are sometimes referred to as "toxins." Wastes are also excreted through the lungs in the expired air, and through the kidneys in the urine. Daily bathing cleanses the skin and helps rid the body of these substances, lessening the work of the lungs, heart and kidneys.

Relaxing Effect

Another important effect of the daily bath is its relaxing action on tired nerves. It refreshes the body and promotes thorough relaxation and rest. Nothing is more soothing than a lukewarm tub after a busy day.I know of many persons who have rid themselves of insomnia, the inability to sleep, by the simple practice of taking a warm bath just before retiring. For this purpose, do not have the water hot, but merely lukewarm. A warm drink after the bath is an additional aid in overcoming sleeplessness.

Avoid Extremes

Bear in mind that warm water is relaxing and cold water is stimulating. As a rule cold baths or showers are taken upon arising in the morning. In no instance, however, is it advisable to take baths of a very high or very low temperature unless instructed to do so by the physician. The extreme ranges of temperature are used in the treatment of certain disorders, at a health spa or watering place where"My Skin Was Full of Pimples and Blemishes"Says Verna Schleppe: "Since using Aderika the pimples are gone. My skin is smooth and glows with

"LOVE DENIED"

by LOUISE LONG AND ETHEL DOHERTY

SYNOPSIS

Stuart Pennington, struggling young artist, loves Sharlene Standring, wealthy society girl, but cannot ask her to marry him and share his poverty. Moreover, he knows Sharlene considers him just her best friend. Julie Devore, Stuart's model, is jealous of the society girl and would give anything for Stuart's love, but she means little to him. When Sharlene returns from abroad with the news that she is engaged to Kent Damerell, millionaire play-boy, Stuart's dream crumbles. He is, however, favorably impressed with Kent, and realizes the rival is of Sharlene's world. Stuart returns to his studio with a heavy heart, Julie, watching from the window, is filled with elation at the thought that Sharlene has given up. But Stuart ignores Julie and tries to find consolation in his work. Five days before his wedding, Kent receives a long distance telephone call from his brother, Leigh, in New York, informing him that a girl, named Cora, had shot herself upon reading of Kent's engagement, and her dying request is to see Kent! He phones Sharlene that business requires his presence in New York and goes there by plane. Kent had loved Cora for several years. Expecting her to die, he grants her wish and marries her. But Cora gains strength after the ceremony. Much as Kent tries to keep the marriage secret, the newspapers print the whole sensational story. He calls Sharlene long distance to explain, but she is visiting Stuart. Julie would give anything for Stuart's eyes looked at her with the same adoration they do Sharlene.

CHAPTER XI

Julie came forward and jerked a chair about noisily. She felt hurt and ignored as those two tall creatures stood smiling at each other, both furnished by the splendor of the sun streaming in the window. "You look like some beer," she said sulkily. It was her unfailing method of getting attention. "Oh," said Sharlene, turning toward the girl with a hasty realization that she had forgotten her existence. "I'd rather have tea, if you don't mind."

"We haven't got any tea in the house. I could make coffee—"

"No, no, please don't bother; I'd love the beer."

The combination model-house-keeper went out into the kitchen. "Julie spends her spare time brewing," said Stuart with a smile. "She's really become expert with her crocks."

"That's nice . . . Stuart, I came up to tell you that the wedding is postponed."

"What?"

"Yes, Kent was called East—something terribly urgent, and he can't get back in time, even flying."

"Too bad! When will it be?"

"We'll set a date when we hear from Kent again. Poor fellow, he was frantic when he found he couldn't get back. But I don't mind. It's to be such a simple wedding—"

The telephone rang and Stuart answered it.

It was Mrs. Standring's voice, low, urgent: "Stuart, is Sharlene still there?"

"Yes, Shall I—?"

"No, no. There's bad news, Stuart. Bring her home at once but don't frighten her. Just tell her it's—"

"It's a surprise."

"I see. You want me, too?"

"By all means!"

"Right. Bye."

Sharlene was standing before his easel, smiling at a painting of Julie blowing soap bubbles.

"Soap ad," Stuart explained. "Sharlene, your mother says I'm to bring you home. She has a surprise."

Sharlene turned sharply and looked at him with dilating eyes: "About Kent?"

"She didn't say. I rather think we'll find tea there. I'll have to get out of these gardening clothes. Excuse me a minute."

"Of course. I wonder what it can be? Did she sound excited?"

Stuart's voice, casual, reassuring, came from the bedroom: "Oh, no. Just as usual."

Julie came back into the studio with the beer on a tray. Sharlene, accepting a foaming glass with apparent enthusiasm, she sipped it, suppressing a grimace. She loathed the taste of beer.

"Stuart's dressing to take me home," she observed.

"Oh, I see. A long pause."

"This is lovely beer."

"Thanks. The boy who came up here like it. And I don't mind making it."

"Stuart has told me how awfully well you look after him," said Sharlene. "Julie shrugged. 'Somebody's got to do it!'"

"I suppose he'd forget to eat when he's absorbed in a picture."

"Yes, and he needs other things, too," Julie said this cryptically, to give herself importance.

Sharlene grinned inwardly, wickedly.

Stuart came hurrying back, pulling on his coat. Sharlene rose, setting down her glass.

Julie rose with dignity. "I hope you'll come again sometime, Miss Standring."

Stuart shot a quick glance at Julie, amazed at her assumption of the status of hostess to Sharlene, and astounded at his own resentment. He had never minded the model's little airs when his men friends visited.

But Sharlene was saying pleasantly, as they went out the door: "Thank you, Julie. Goodbye."

Sharlene stood in Mrs. Standring's upstairs sitting room, in the midst of a litter of tissue paper and white ribbon, a welter of silver and gold crystals and objects d'art. She was looking at her mother with dazed eyes. Her face was a strange, arrested stillness about her. Stuart sat on the edge of Mrs. Standring's desk, arms folded, smouldering with anger. He kept his eyes on Sharlene's face looking up from under drawn brows.

"You'd better begin at the beginning, mother, and tell me exactly what he said. I seem to be a little vague."

She had taken the blow standing. Like a thoroughbred. Not a whimper. Stuart remembered her lifting gladness the last time he was in this house. Her gaiety today, up in his little shack. It wasn't as if she hadn't adored the fellow. What was it she had said? "I want to be the grass under his feet."

Well, he had made her the mud under them.

Mrs. Standring was white, too. But controlled. Anxious only to soften the blow for Sharlene.

"Well," she began painstakingly, "when the operator began calling for you, saying that New York was on the wire—you know what a lot of fuss there is to clear the lines in the middle of a busy day—I somehow knew that it was bad news and that I'd better take the message. Besides, I didn't know where to reach you, as you were going shopping before you went to Stuart's."

"You were quite right, Mother. Go on."

"Well, after an interminable time, I heard Kent's voice. He thought he was talking to you. I broke in and told him—"

"What did he say at first? His exact words?"

"Something like: 'Sharlene, darling, can you ever, ever forgive me?'"

"I see . . . And then you said you were Mrs. Standring and—"

"He seemed relieved after a moment. Said it would be better for me to break it to you."

"Break it to me? Yes. Go on."

"Then he said: 'Mrs. Standring, I'm in terrible trouble. I had to—I mean, for the sake of pity and friendship—old friendship—she was dying and she asked it of me. I had to marry her. We all thought it was her death. Then she didn't die. That was the sense of what he said. Dear. He said it over and over, widely, with appeals to me to make you see he had to do it. It was the only thing he could do, he said—in decency.'"

"Decency?"

"Well, he kept saying it was the only sporting thing to do—"

"He certainly did the sporting thing by me! Well, what else did he say?"

"He said he depended on you to understand."

"I am beginning to understand . . . I am to be kept down, then, waiting until this woman dies?"

"That's what I gathered. Or he also said something about having the marriage annulled—if she didn't die pretty soon. There was a long pause."

"It's intolerable!" Sharlene said suddenly, and the color came rushing back into her cheeks. She started to pace up and down the room. Stuart turned and exchanged indignant glances with Mrs. Standring.

"There's no getting around it," Sharlene spoke rapidly. "He doesn't love me—or he couldn't have done this to me. He doesn't love me. That's the thing I've got to face. He doesn't love me!"

Mrs. Standring looked up at Stuart. "Evidently an old affair accounts for—"

Sharlene whirled on her mother. "When he was wiring me to postpone the wedding—he was already—"

"Her voice failed her. She went on pacing up and down the room."

"He should have told Sharlene," Mrs. Standring said to Stuart. "before he ever flew East. It was the only square thing to do. I think I despise him more for that than anything else. He could never explain that away."

"Oh," Sharlene said in a suppressed voice, "he lied to me—said it was business. He didn't have the nerve—the decency—to come out here and tell me he had to go because this woman was calling him."

"How I hate a coward!"

She flung herself over to the window and stood with her back turned, gazing unseeing into the quivering top of a pepper tree.

Keye Luke, prominent Chinese actor, is featured as Chan's son.

The co-feature, "The Gay Deception," stars the handsome Francis Lederer. Francis Dee returns to the screen after a long absence to play opposite Lederer in this romantic comedy set in the sophisticated atmosphere of a luxurious hotel.

The two most interesting people in the hotel are Miss Dee as a little country girl spending the proceeds of a sweepstake prize in the grand manner and Francis Lederer, a European prince, posing as a belloy.

These two are drawn together by love. As the climax approaches, Lederer emerges as his real self and is arrested for an impostor. And then the picture proceeds to its close, in which all the complications are cleared up and the lovers reunited.

Even cash or currency costs the bank in handling expense and insurance.

Winona Guild Meets Friday

Needlework Organization Plans Annual Gathering

WINONA, Oct. 22.—The annual meeting of the local Needlework Guild will be held in the Methodist church parlors on Friday evening.

An interesting program of musical numbers and other features is being planned. Envoys Steed of the Salem Salvation Army headquarters will be the principal speaker.

The garments which have been collected this year will be on display.

50th Anniversary

It will mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of this organization in America. It was formed in 1885 in Philadelphia when Mrs. Alanson Hartence, who had returned from England, interested her niece, Miss Laura Safford and friends in the idea.

In loyalty to the founder, Lady Wolverson, the organization used the same name but called it the "Needlework Guild of America."

The collection of new as well as useful articles and garments of wearing apparel has given this organization a distinct place of philanthropic endeavor.

The carrying on of this work on a national basis with members representing every walk of life and all phases of religious belief in all phases of the world is an entirely new financial system is another distinct feature. No other national organization is carrying on a national work without requiring definite financial assessments from its branches. Gifts of garments and money are based upon the ability and desire of each individual and not upon definite dues, it was explained.

Formed in 1924

The Winona Guild was organized in the fall of 1924 with offices and 10 directors and 250 garments were collected. The directors are the voting power of the organization and the business is usually transacted prior to the annual meeting.

Each director must collect 22 or more new garments and a quota of fund subscriptions. A member agrees to give two or more new garments or a sum of money. A total of 336 articles of new clothing was issued during 1934-35, including one layette to 18 different families.

Today's Pattern

SMOOTH FIT Pattern 2512

No matter what the scales may show, a forty-eight will find the same slim-line silhouette as a fourteen in this easily made slip. Its chief claim to fame is an extra back piece which may be sewn across the back, and down one side only, to provide a shadowproof feature, and assure a comfortable stride with its added "give." No chance for straps to slip, either being cut in one piece with the bodice, which cleverly placed darts provide fit over the bust. It's a grand idea to have a dark slip to match important dark frocks. Non-shrinkable rayon or crepe are nice, too, in tea-rose.

Pattern 2512 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

The proper treatment for a bilious child

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to solve things right!

The ordinary laxative, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult. The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

PILOT'S CRASH INJURIES FATAL

Ruth Nichols, In Hospital, Has Even Chance To Recover

(By Associated Press)

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Federal state investigators sought to determine today why a giant air liner crashed, killing the pilot and critically injuring Miss Ruth Nichols, ace feminine pilot.

Capt. Harry Hublitz, 42, a veteran flier, died last night in a hospital of burns and injuries suffered when the 20-passenger plane fell.

Chance to Recover

Miss Nichols is in a hospital with severe injuries but physicians said she has a "better than even" chance to recover. She suffered fractures of the left wrist, ankle and nose, concussions, burns and possible internal injuries.

Four of her employees—two men and two women—were treated for less severe hurts and last night carried out a double wedding, originally planned as a sky wedding over New York City.

Capt. Hublitz was at the controls of the plane, owned by Clarence Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flier, when it took off for New York.

With Miss Nichols as co-pilot, the plane had been used in Troy for a week for passenger hops. Ten per cent of the proceeds were given to charity.

Capt. Albert B. Moore of the state police said the plane wavered and Capt. Hublitz attempted to return to the Troy airport.

The ship lost altitude rapidly, however, struck one tree and swung on another before dropping to the ground. It burst into flames immediately.

Nazi Offense Against Jews Throws Light On Olympics

Pledge Given Olympic Committee

(NOTE: This is the first of two stories describing conditions in Germany as they affect Jewish athletes and, directly or indirectly, their chances of competing in the Olympics.)

By A. D. STEFFERUD,
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

BERLIN—A sweeping Nazi offensive against Jews and the approach of the 1936 Olympics throw a sharp light on the position of Jewish athletes in Germany.

Jews are being relentlessly ejected from the general social, cultural, economic and professional fields, while strong pressure—direct and indirect—is being brought to bear against Jewish sports organizations.

Give Promise

An amount of frank publicity accompanies many aspects of the anti-semitic campaign—but not the athletic situation, because of a Nazi promise that Jews will not be hindered in competing for places in the Reich's Olympic teams.

A pledge was given the international Olympic committee that no one in Germany would be barred in any free athletic participation or in competition during or before the games here and in Garmisch-Partenkirchen next year.

Jewish leaders, however, declare their clubs are suffering from boycotts by Aryan associations and the regulations of Nazi officials.

There are about 35,000 members of Jewish athletic organizations in Germany. About 20,000 of them belong to the German Makkabi league, founded in 1897, and the rest to the sports association of the National Union of Jewish Front Soldiers, founded in 1933.

These two associations consist of about 250 groups, most of which include both men and women, and which generally have met once or twice weekly for gymnastics, track, swimming, football and tennis training.

Two Boxing Groups

Two groups in Berlin go in only for boxing.

In only a few German cities, however, may Jews now use public athletic fields. To build and maintain their own grounds is almost impossible because of the cost.

Consequently, many Jewish sportsmen have been forced to play in country fields and pastures where no facilities are available for many contests, such as several track events.

Swimming also is almost impossible, because nearly every municipality has adopted regulations banning use of pools, beaches, and resorts by Jews.

The Makkabi and Front Soldiers league are responsible to the federal sports leader, Hans Von Tschammer and Osten who has issued these regulations.

Sport Club Rules

The formation and continuation of a Jewish sport club are permitted only when there are no contrary public orders involving "state enemies."

The clubs must be connected with a recognized workers' society. Athletic organizations responsible to Von Tschammer and Osten can if deemed desirable, look after the interests of the Jewish associations.

The use of public and private pools, halls, courts, tracks and fields is limited by the wishes and plans of schools, with athletic society of the national league for exercise, and like organizations.

Jewish organizations need not contribute to funds of the league.

LAYDEN WAS ONE OF ROCKNE'S FAMOUS "FOUR HORSEMEN"

Louis' Manager In Pistol Battle

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—A pistol battle may rob Joe Louis, sensational Negro heavyweight, of one of his principal assets—the ring shrewdness, counsel and teaching of his trainer, Jack Blackburn.

Blackburn was at liberty under bonds of $5,000 today on a charge of assault with intent to kill growing out of a shooting affray in which he engaged with another Negro Sunday night. His hearing was set for Nov. 19, pending the outcome of the critical condition of Enoch Houser, 69, one of two bystanders, shot when Blackburn and his enemy blazed away at each other with pistols.

Louis, who regards Blackburn as the man responsible for his present ranking as the leading heavyweight contender, was all upset over the situation. Louis, in his own mind, believes that Blackburn, individually, made him what he is today.

Three sterling backs and one lineman have stood out in the early play of Buckeye conference teams and are the outstanding candidates for the annual all-star team. The backs are: Ray Nolting, of Cincinnati; Earl Wellman, of Marshall; and Vince McDonough, of Dayton. The lineman is Art Lewis, burly Ohio university tackle, who appears to be one of the conference's all-time greats and easily the finest lineman to play on a league team since Bill Stewart, the fine tackle who was responsible for much of the success of Miami's teams of 1931 and 1932.

When Bert Johnson, the University of Kentucky's great half-back, failed to make a touchdown against Ohio State, it was the first game during his intercollegiate career in which he did not score.

HOOSIERS ARE DUE FOR CHANGE

McMillen Hopes Ground- Gaining Will Turn Into Scores

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—It's about time for Indiana's Hoosiers to start turning their ground gaining ability into touchdowns, Coach Alvin "Bo" McMillin thinks, and he hopes they will decide to do it Saturday in a big way against the "Scarlet Scourge" from Ohio State. In yardage and first downs, the Hoosiers did all right against Michigan two weeks ago, and against Cincinnati last Saturday. They out-gained both foes by handsome margins—but didn't get any touchdowns, losing both battles by 7 to 0 scores.

Give Good Account

"We got a lot of hard work out of the last two Saturdays," McMillin said, "but without results. We are due to get going we will try to give a good account of ourselves against Ohio State, and the customers will see a ball game."

McMillin started a week of secret practice yesterday to give his squad a chance to concentrate on his intricate "five man" backfield offense. He also planned some shifts to develop reserve strength.

Four brothers, each of whom won letters in football, basketball and track at Defiance, O. high school are now enrolled at Ohio State. They are Lew, John, Sam and Dick Zirkle.

Youth Meets Youth and Age Meets Age In Semi-Finals of P. G. A. Tournament

Al Zimmerman and Johnny Revolta Are Youngsters, Armour and Watrous Are Veterans With- in Reach of Golf Crown

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 22.—Holes for his one-up victory over Ed Dudley.

In defeating Horton Smith, Watrous remained steady in the face of a sparkling series of birdies. Toward the end, Smith turned on the heat by holing a 5 foot putt, but Watrous delivered in the pinch and also came through with a birdie, from 10 feet.

Smith made another bold stroke in the 34th, the next hole, where he curled a four footer perfectly to dodge a Stymie, but Watrous could not be shaken from par. Watrous' putter was his mainstay.

Zimmerman used two strokes less than par in eliminating Runyan.

The youngsters within reach of the coveted crown are blond Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., new to such high ground, and a Milwaukee curthead, Johnny Revolta, sole surviving member of the Ryder cup team.

The men of experience, in the other bracket, were the rapidly graying but yet sterling Tommy Armour, and Al Watrous, who has flirted with major championships on many occasions but never quite hooked one.

Zimmerman could lay heavy claim to the honors, for he de-throned the little king of the PGA, Paul Runyan, in a brilliant exhibition yesterday. But it was his antagonist, Revolta, who disposed of the medalist, Walter Hagen.

Revolta had his hands full yesterday in handling Eddie Schulta of Troy, N. Y., but finally put him down, 4 to 2.

Armour was carried three extra
